

Miracle From the Deep
Gold and High Finance
Who Understands Either?
Chance for the League
By Arthur Brisbane

A MIRACLE from the deep came to encourage those that love and respect courageous men. Two brave German fliers, Willy Rody and Christian Hansen, and their Portuguese companion, Fernando Costa, who, have been found after clinging to the floating wreck of their airplane for more than 150 hours.

Bad flying news relates the death of Peter J. Brady, president of the Federation Bank and Trust Co. of New York, and head of Mayor Walker's committee on aviation. He believed that it was his duty to fly, and he flew constantly, although he was not a pilot. He was killed when a plane piloted by James Goodwin Hall, breaker of many records, crashed into a house on Staten Island.

The step taken by England "modifying" the gold standard, which means ABANDONING THE GOLD PARITY OF ENGLISH BANKNOTES, demonstrates Great Britain's determination to free herself from domination by huge piles of gold upon which France and the United States sit like idle fathers in the Wagner opera.

The British Empire, finding it will without an adequate gold supply, must arrange to transact business without such a supply, and does the only thing possible.

In suspending the gold standard, without abandoning it, Britain goes back to her condition of 1924, and previously, cancelled the gold standard act of 1925 that required the Bank of England to sell gold at fixed prices, payable in pounds.

Under that act, if you had a $10 note the Bank of England was compelled to give you a certain amount of gold for it.

The British overestimated their financial strength, especially when they tried to put gigantic India on a gold basis, thus helping to destroy the value of silver and making worthless the money of over half the people on earth.

What the effect of Britain's action, or the effect of forcing upon Great Britain will be, on this and other countries, professional "great financiers" will learn from your visible professional "great financiers."

And as they know a little about world finance and the gold fetish as a child, under you will not learn MUCH.

Experienced financiers who do not guess have no definite opinion as to the ultimate results of Britain's action. It might increase the value of silver by convincing nations that it is dangerous to destroy one of two metals that have been used, side by side, for money for five thousand years.

Any British obligations specifically payable in gold, or dollars will be paid according to contract. There is no hint of repudiation of any obligation.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, who talks briefly on all occasions and rarely for a purpose, made an exception yesterday, telling a reporter in London that he looks upon the British gold action as "a hopeful sign, and not a discouraging event."

He knows about British conditions, and believes that the British government has taken the second of necessary steps, the first being to balance the budget, the second, to turn regard to gold.

He predicts the restoration of trade in England and the world.

The New York Stock Exchange and Americans generally received the British news optimistically, putting up prices of important stocks. United States Steel went up more than 4 points, and stock exchange authorities, taking steps to discourage short selling, acted strictly and promptly.

The English pound sterling sold off as was expected. Britain had tried the impossible with her sudden restoration of the gold standard and the attempt to extend it.

ENGLAND BANS FOREIGN DEALERS IN TRANSFERS

PROFITTEERING ALSO UNDER WATCH

Financial Circles Calm in New Order of Things; Exchange to Open Tomorrow

London, Sept. 22 (INS)—Dealing in foreign exchange by residents of the United Kingdom, except in the transaction of normal business, was forbidden in an order issued today by Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden.

Drastic regulations will be enforced to prevent profiteering in food and an unwarranted rise in retail prices.

Exchange opens tomorrow. The exchange will open tomorrow, it was officially announced this afternoon.

Stock brokers favored a resumption of business and saw in the depression of stock an opportunity for better prices for securities and industrial shares.

The street dealings continued this afternoon with good volume in industrial. Goldmines were most supported with rises of 2 to 10 shillings per share.

No gold was offered in the bullion market, although arrivals consisted of 200,000 sovereigns and 60,000 sterling in bars. The nominal price for gold fixed today at 49 shillings and 7 pence per ounce against 44 shillings 9 pence yesterday.

NATION IS CONFIDENT With the "most important balanced budget in the world," Great Britain today became a financial future with renewed confidence.

Suspension of the gold standard for six months became effective today when a royal commission composed of Lord Curzon, Lord Dunsford and Lord Denham, acting for King George, who is in Scotland, gave royal assent to the parliamentary bill releasing the Bank of England from paying a fixed rate for gold.

The pound sterling was quoted at 100 pence ($4.7) in private dealings in Barcelona today, it was learned in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch.

WHEN LILLIAN FOSTER DECLARES WAR

Fury Lillian Foster, diminutive star of "Divorce Me Dear," which was scheduled to open at the Tremont Theatre last night, but didn't, is going to contest her dismissal from the east, she said today at the Copple Plaza.

Edith M. Biddell, president of the company, discharged the star "because of her temperamental conduct," but as far as Miss Foster is concerned, the matter is closed.

"I take him [her husband] as an insult and attack not only on my dignity as an actress but as a woman," she said vehemently.

"I kept my part of the contract, there was no temperamental conduct on my part," Mr. Biddell will have much explaining to do in open court, believe me.

"Broadway is a stream of ears and tongues, and Mr. Biddell will have to tell the public what he means when he results an actress of my dignity."

Buried Alive as Big House Goes Down

Philadelphia, Sept. 22 (AP)—One man was crushed to death, another man and woman buried alive and several other persons injured early today in the collapse of a two-story twin apartment structure at 429-11 Walnut st.

The dead man was George Mitchell, 41, safe proprietor, who, his wife and two children, were in the building when it collapsed.

Both were still alive and were removed to hospitals in a critical condition. They are Miss Ann Bell, 24, a waitress, and George W. Jamison, 20, who had rented the house to live with George Mitchell.

NOW HER CRY IS "REVENGE"

Manila, Sept. 22 (AP)—Memory and martial music brought back the freshness of youth to 10,000 feet today as the American Legion passed in review for the 13th time its members were mustered out of their country's service.

Shoulders that once ached under pack straps and weary bodies become rounded and stooped over due to work bench strained again at the cry of "forward march."

The line was fully four miles long. It started from a review stand on Jefferson ave. and Grand boulevard, three miles from the review stand, and the last units were instructed to report in parade order four hours later.

England's Action Points to New Pound Value

London, Sept. 22 (AP)—The pound standard means that a nation must have a certain amount of gold in the country to do business.

On this gold the nation will put up a certain amount of money to other countries and guarantees the money it puts into circulation. The nation must at all times keep a certain amount of gold known as the minimum in the country.

Other nations and all creditors demand that the gold minimum or reserve be maintained, otherwise there is chaos.

England has been losing gold for months, first to France, then to Holland. Her gold investments all over the world are suffering in a lower value, for many of the nations to which it loaned money cannot pay and the trade with other countries has been dropping.

England's suspension of the gold standard means that the Bank of England must release a certain amount of money to settle in a national level.

LEGION'S BUSY PLANNING BIG GUNS

Beer Line All Set, Now Boys Want to Get Strong in Politics

BULLETIN (Continued from First Page)

Detroit, Sept. 22 (INS)—The prohibition became the paramount question before the thirtieth annual convention of the American Legion early today when the resolutions subcommittee, led by a vote of 3 to 2, decided to recommend a modification of the dry law. It was a sensational victory for the Wets.

By FLOYD GIBBONS Journalist and Radio Reporter (Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

Detroit, Sept. 22—Hello everybody.

American legionnaires, behind the barrage of music and noise they're laid down on the whole Detroit sector are consolidating their positions.

The first one is their stand on beer. That's the one the majority wet troops have put into the strongest shape.

There wasn't much progress made in the big house drive. It was a strong-looking offensive until the bonus forces saw they were out-weighted and thought Hoover for the last defensive gun.

Then the pro-bonus and pro-beer forces fell back on the Gambrinus line. They are strongly entrenched there. And it's hot over whether there in Detroit to make the semi-dry listen to wet arguments when the big debate on the Legion's stand begins.

Boys want a place, too. There are lots of strong leaders in the beer army. It was different in the bonus campaign.

In any case, today Hoover behind the militant front lines at the convention city there are other men going on.

The ranks are divided in those impromptu conferences. Since Newton D. Baker came to the convention, a few hours before the modification, there have been whispers about him being the Democratic presidential candidate.

Most of the boys are still fellows, but there are still plenty of patriots for all kinds of other candidates.

AIR FILL OF ROOMS Other places there are more arguments for Col. Teddy Roosevelt as a Republican vice-presidential candidate. He has been stepping forward since he arrived from Puerto Rico, and he's been taking a big part in Legion affairs.

Legion Army Marches in Colorful Pageant

This action was taken after Japanese representatives had promised Japan would abide by the principles of the League covenant and the Kellogg pact and would take all possible measures to achieve an amicable and just settlement.

The council meeting broke up with the promise that it would be convened as soon as possible to see upon the recommendation of the council members and to hear the spokesmen of the two powers.

All China Uniting to Drive Out Japanese

Nanking, Sept. 22 (AP)—Peace between the Chinese Nationalist government here and the insurgent government in Canton seemed imminent today as a result of the Japanese occupation of southern Manchuria.

Peace proclamations are expected to be issued shortly in both Nanking and Canton.

Meantime official reports here indicated that the Japanese invasion spreading in Manchuria.

It was stated that Japanese military advances at Changchun, minus of the South Manchurian Railway, were sending the Chinese army division to Harbin, in response to urgent appeals from the 4000 Japanese residents there.

The President's address to the American Legion was simple, brief and convincing. The making of it required courage, for it was a direct challenge to unpopularity.

You will be given perhaps, certainly not astonished, to learn that the London Times, the world's affairs go on as usual. You read this morning what President Hoover had to say in his attempt to persuade the American Legion that it should not at this time demand the right to borrow further from the government on the basis of the gold standard.

According to the London Times, the gold standard is excellent, while London has the gold, but not so good when the gold goes to New York and Paris.

The League of Nations has a chance to show the world what it amounts to, with the Japanese accusing China of all wickedness, capturing and shooting up Chinese cities and warning the inhabitants in Mukden that anyone hampering Japanese troop movements, and endangering Japanese lives, will be shot.

Japan lets it be known that it will interfere with the League of Nations is desired, and there will be no more to say. Amount to anything. Although China is clamoring for proof that the League of Nations is a Chinese city, and warning the inhabitants in Mukden that anyone hampering Japanese troop movements, and endangering Japanese lives, will be shot.

Nanking, China, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Chinese Nationalist government today announced appointment of Dr. W. W. Yen, former premier in Peking, as minister to the United States.

League Orders Japan, China to End War

The spokesmen for the two nations were summoned to meet with a council committee to find the best measure promising security of life and property.

This action was taken after Japanese representatives had promised Japan would abide by the principles of the League covenant and the Kellogg pact and would take all possible measures to achieve an amicable and just settlement.

The council meeting broke up with the promise that it would be convened as soon as possible to see upon the recommendation of the council members and to hear the spokesmen of the two powers.

Chinese in the Philippines Send Appeal to Hoover

Manila, P. I., Sept. 22 (AP)—The Chinese Nationalist government in the Philippines branch of the Chinese Kuomintang (People's Party) today proclaimed a desire for the Chinese to withdraw from the Philippines and asking him to use his good offices toward "rectifying such a violation."

All China Uniting to Drive Out Japanese

Nanking, Sept. 22 (AP)—Peace between the Chinese Nationalist government here and the insurgent government in Canton seemed imminent today as a result of the Japanese occupation of southern Manchuria.

Canton leaders, replying to an appeal of the Nanking Government for all members of the Kuomintang to unite in a common front, declared that they would "cooperate in restoring Japan's aggression."

Peace proclamations are expected to be issued shortly in both Nanking and Canton.

Meantime official reports here indicated that the Japanese invasion spreading in Manchuria.

It was stated that Japanese military advances at Changchun, minus of the South Manchurian Railway, were sending the Chinese army division to Harbin, in response to urgent appeals from the 4000 Japanese residents there.

The President's address to the American Legion was simple, brief and convincing. The making of it required courage, for it was a direct challenge to unpopularity.

You will be given perhaps, certainly not astonished, to learn that the London Times, the world's affairs go on as usual. You read this morning what President Hoover had to say in his attempt to persuade the American Legion that it should not at this time demand the right to borrow further from the government on the basis of the gold standard.

According to the London Times, the gold standard is excellent, while London has the gold, but not so good when the gold goes to New York and Paris.

The League of Nations has a chance to show the world what it amounts to, with the Japanese accusing China of all wickedness, capturing and shooting up Chinese cities and warning the inhabitants in Mukden that anyone hampering Japanese troop movements, and endangering Japanese lives, will be shot.

Japan lets it be known that it will interfere with the League of Nations is desired, and there will be no more to say. Amount to anything. Although China is clamoring for proof that the League of Nations is a Chinese city, and warning the inhabitants in Mukden that anyone hampering Japanese troop movements, and endangering Japanese lives, will be shot.

"Elizabeth met him on the Leviathan a long time ago," said Mrs. Harris. "She hasn't seen him since he went back to his wife, from whom he was separated."

A letter to Kane, signed "E. H. D.," which authorities are investigating, said:

"Darling, Dear:

"I wonder if you and I will ever get leisure to do some of the Old World places together, the good and the bad."

"Do you still have any dreams

NEW COLLINGS' GRILLING

of the slayers was an escaped madman.

Two promising developments in the case were the fact that Mrs. Collings had been seen in the company of a man who was known to her.

CLUE VALUELESS
At Wilmington, Del., a middle-aged man and a youth were arrested on suspicion of being the "slayers" but were released when it was found their descriptions did not tally with those of the men Mrs. Collings described.

At Huntington, after announcing an expected arrest, the result of finding a "small object" on the beach where Collings' body came ashore, Det. Atty. Alexander Blue arrived at the conclusion the new clue was valueless.

He did not disclose its nature, but said that as a result of it he had telephoned to Boston, Providence and Stamford.

The questioning of Mrs. Collings was resumed shortly before noon today.

At that hour, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick Mander and Det. Felix Di Martini, accompanied by a stenographer, and by John William A. Kelly, Mrs. Collings' lawyer, went to the Collings home.

GRILLED AGAIN
They had questioned her from 6 o'clock last night until 1 o'clock this morning and drawn a virtual blank.

Mrs. Collings' reiterated story was the same she had told before, its sole productive feature being the intimation Collings may have known the two men who boarded her yacht, Penguin, and subsequently killed him.

Di Martini said Mrs. Collings denied the report that she and her husband had entertained a man on the yacht on the afternoon before the murder.

Di Martini said he was especially interested in the monkey angle and the inquiries at the Hood Trust Co. of Watertown, where the rubber shoes were manufactured.

Officials at that company told the Boston Evening American last Thursday that from marks on the monkey it might be possible to trace their ownership but until today the authorities took no move in that direction.

The serial number indicates they were made at Watertown nine years ago and their present condition, which is fair, may indicate they lay in the stock of some store—probably in a small city or town for two or three years.

Inquiries at Smith College held a double significance. Mrs. Collings graduated from there in 1923.

QUIZ CLASSMATES
Collings and the former Lillian Chelms, 12 years his junior, became engaged while she was still at Smith and were married a few days after her graduation.

The single of the investigation included the planned questioning of quiz classmates of Mrs. Collings. Many of these, now married, reside in Greater Boston.

The "Hotel Charles" blanket, positively identified as stolen from Mrs. Collings by one of the pirates, according to her story, may have some link with the mysterious "F. E. Collingshouse and wife of Stamford," who stayed at the Springfield hotel on August 2, 1930, detectives believe.

Present inquiries are a check on the statement of Frederick J. Voss, Bridgmont, Pa., bank manager, that the blanket may have been stolen from his own vault before Collings' murder.

Voss said he inadvertently took in the boat and the date of his presence there and the circumstances of his absence there were being sought. Di Martini said.

"MADMAN" CLEARED
Possibility that one of the pirates was an escaped madman was eliminated when Mander showed Mrs. Collings a photograph of Michael King, shell-shocked war veteran, who fled the Kings Park Hospital for the Insane on the day before the slaying.

"The said King was not one of the pirates," Mander said. "He is the only madman at large of whom we know."

Mrs. Collings, Det. Atty. Blue said, will be "repeated" to appear at the hearing on Friday, when the report into Collings' death is resumed.

The district attorney continued to take the position that Mrs. Collings' story may be true, but that, if it is, he wants proofs of its veracity.

"While her story may be true," he intimated, "there are certain parts of it that have to do with the actions of others that do not seem to be what might be expected under the circumstances."

Blue repeated his previous statement that he is unable to reconstruct Mrs. Collings' story of the brutal manner in which her husband was murdered with her account of her own treatment at the hands of the "pirates."

Atty. Hon. R. Cummings, chief of counsel for Mrs. Collings, issued the following statement:

"It is gratifying to note that informed opinion has accepted more and more completely Mrs.

Collings' account of the extraordinary happenings attendant upon her husband's death.

"Sensational surmises have become exclusive property of a few sensational gathering agencies whose decency is at a discount. No intelligent observer can now doubt that Mrs. Collings has told the truth exactly as she saw it."

NOT WORRIED
"The disturbing fact that it is possible for marauders to board a little yacht, sweep down upon an innocent and harmless family, assassinate the husband, kidnap the wife and turn a child adrift in the waters of the Sound is a matter of widespread concern."

"The waters of the Sound should be made safe for hundreds of peaceful little families similarly circumstanced and which might, just as readily, have been the victims of this or a similar atrocious crime."

Cummings said he had received a transcript of the evidence given by Mrs. Collings to Det. Atty. John J. Lacey, who was in charge of the search of Nantux County, and said he was prepared to ask for a transcript of the evidence given Det. Atty. Blue of Suffolk County.

"We are worried as to the outcome," he said.

At West Haven, Ct., police said they regarded a note saying "I murdered E. Collings," found in a white key bottle floating in Long Island Sound, as the work of a joker.

DIXON LOVE SUIT GOES TO JURY
The married life of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Dixon was almost ideally happy until the "other woman" appeared.

Atty. William A. Lacey, who said today in his closing argument for Mrs. Lillian C. Dixon in her $50,000 alienation suit against Mrs. Minerva E. Richardson in Middlesex County.

At the close of his argument Judge Frederic E. Greenbush directed his charge and the case, which has been on trial more than two weeks, was given to the jury.

Atty. Lacey ridiculed the testimony of defense witnesses as to quarrels between Mr. and Mrs. Dixon in the early years of their married life.

"Mrs. Dixon has always been a loving, affectionate wife and has always made a splendid home for her husband," he said. "She has outwitted his friends, outwitted her enemies, outwitted her enemies."

"When Mrs. Richardson appeared, she asked if she put her arms around Mr. Dixon, you didn't expect her to answer 'Yes'?"

"Yes," he said. "Of course their answer was 'No'."

MOROSO FINDS PIRATE KILLING LACKS MOTIVE

By JOHN A. MOROSO,
Noted Sociologist and Author.
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Pictures, Inc.
Huntington, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The fresh and lively interest taken in the work of solving the Collings mystery sent investigators back to the yacht Penguin today.

I found I had neglected to put in my inventory, the fact that all the time of the action of the tragedy there were six life preservers in a pile on the deck.

I found no blood on these, nor on the folded rug piled with them, although they took up a good deal of the space of the nine-foot eight inches by eight-foot six inches making the area of murder.

WEAPON IS MISSING.
Only two small spots carried what are supposed to be bloodstains, although the autopsy shows that the whole frontal section of the dead man's skull was caved in. Water in his lungs showed that he was still breathing when thrown overboard. Therefore, if his heart was beating and sending blood through his arterial system as he lay on the deck there should have been a great quantity of his life fluid there.

The deck might have been washed clear of it with a bucket of water drawn from the sea, and in the canoe which brought the two men on their mission of assembling motiveless murder. There was a bucket. It was not conceivable that the broken milk bottle was the weapon used in the attack. If a martini glass, a hammer or a hatchet was used, it was probably dropped overboard and is now at the bottom of the sea.

NO FUNDS IN BANK.
Checking on Mr. Collings' theory that the men boarded the Penguin were there for robbery, having, as she suggests, watched her husband when he would go to the bank in Northport to get his small checks cashed and believing that he was well-to-do, investigators hurried to that town today and visited the two banks.

They found that Collings had no account in either and that he had cashed only the traveler's check in one of them. It was also recalled that Collings wore a diamond ring which was on his finger when the body was found on the shore of the Marshall Field estate at Lloyd's Neck.

BIG BIRTHDAY PARTY AT R. H. WHITE'S

Thousands thronged the R. H. White Co. store for the 73d Anniversary Sale. This picture shows a part of the throng that crowded the store to take advantage of the unusual list of bargains. President B. F. Raphael of the R. H. White Co. declared that the response in the sale showed that "depression talk was over-estimated."

SHOPPERS POUR INTO WHITE'S AT BIG SALE

Depression talk in Boston took a knockdown blow with the opening of the R. H. White Co. 73d Anniversary Sale when all New England demonstrated with amazing forcefulness that money will be spent when the occasion calls for it.

In the first two days of the sale after we had left the Penguin, I saw the lights of another boat. I saw the lights of another boat. I saw the lights of another boat. I saw the lights of another boat. I saw the lights of another boat.

With the newspapers telling of various forms of depression and hard times, with the abandonment of the gold standard by Great Britain announced, the R. H. White Co. with courage and carefully planned merchandising program had thousands of shoppers from all over New England crowding their floors at the inauguration of their 73d Anniversary Sale.

President B. F. Raphael of the R. H. White Co. said: "The success of this sale event shows that people throughout New England are quick to appreciate that this depression talk is over-estimated. We are certainly happy to have contributed in our small way toward better times in New England."

TALKS TOO MUCH AND HE'S DEAD

New York, Sept. 22 (INS).—Too much boasting was blamed by police today for the murder of Benjamin Meyerson, 22-year-old Brooklyn gangster.

After he had shouted in a Brooklyn cafe that he had taken the leadership of a gang headed by Meyer Shapiro until Shapiro was shot to death last week, Meyerson was "rubbed out."

He was shot while walking with a young woman. A young man leaped from an automobile into a crowded street and calmly killed the young gangster.

The girl screamed and ran away as the killer escaped in the death car.

HOOVER IS BACK ON HIS JOB

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP).—President Hoover arrived in the capital early today from Detroit.

His strength taxed by the extreme heat in Detroit and the hurry necessary to keep up with his flying schedule, Mr. Hoover rested in his private car in the afternoon and retired comparatively early.

His day was not over at Detroit, however. Several stops were made in Ohio in the late afternoon for train platform appearances.

President Hoover shook hands with the engineers and conductors and went immediately to the White House.

Fox Company Will Star James Dunne in Story of Ballroom Romance

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Metropolitan Picture Service

Los Angeles, Sept. 22.—James Dunne, one of the few actors to make a name for himself in the picture, is being steadily pushed forward by the Fox Company. Remembering the tragedy of John Wray, many of the skeptics shrugged their shoulders when they heard what a good account James Dunne gave of himself in "Bad Girl." They have changed their tune now and everyone has agreed that he is not only a comer but he has arrived.

His first starring picture "Dance Team," the romance of a ballroom dancer, is taken from a novel by Sarah Addington and is said to have some of the pathos that made the character of Eddie stand out in "Bad Girl."

I hope the Fox Company will select the vehicles for this boy with care for they have a great job if he is handled right, but any actor is only as good as the vehicle given him.

Loeuella O. Parsons

Did you see Dickie Moore in "The Winner"? If you did you probably were captivated with him. Warner Brothers had so many comments on Dickie that they have signed him to a long-term contract. He will be one of the featured players in "School Days" and then there will be other pictures for the young man. He's an unusual child in that he speaks his lines clearly, is absolutely natural, and has all the poise of a seasoned trouper. Not since Jackie Coogan made such a sensation have we had a child actor to compare with Dickie.

Frances Dee, who was the little girl-gal, bread and butter girl for so long and who came out with real S. A. in "The American Tragedy," has been loaned to Universal to play a part in "The Women." Eddie Knopf's story, to be directed by him, is a love story, who a week ago celebrated her 25th wedding anniversary and who started something new in Hollywood, plays one of the English and English ways, is also in "The Women." Wonder if you remember that Frances Dee and Sidney Fox, the leads in "The Women," are both baby wampus stars who the child will see both of them, at the good luck that is coming their way. Love Ayres is currently set for the lead in "The Laughing Boy," if that part doesn't suit him, he is going to break down and weep. Eddie Knopf, formerly playing a role in "Cheating at Fox."

How ice plays a triple role

"To make a glass of iced water really cold," a psychologist confided to us, "you need two things, ice—and psychology." "What's the psychology?" we asked. "That's simple," he replied. "You can chill water by simply running it through refrigerated coils. But the psychology comes in knowing—and you'll observe that smart restaurants and gifted hostesses have learned it—that to have sparkling chilled iced water and clinking glass is the glass is what really does the trick. Why? Because the chilled water sparks, to a lickable glass, is the palate alone, whereas the water with cracked ice in it has a cheery message of coolness for three of our senses—our sight and our hearing as well as our taste. For don't forget, when we're thirsty, we're not just thirsty with our mouths—we're thirsty clear through."

fine singing as Nanki-Poo, and his playing of the role is "frustrated" as Gilbert would say—with illusion. The one mild disappointment was Hips Koyke, whose we have seen and heard as an exquisite Madame Butterfly, but who was not light a vocally uncertain Yum-Yum, though she was her usually graceful self. The rest of the production was in the vein set by the principals—carefully planned and executed, moving with liveliness and humor. The chorus is well drilled and has good voices, as well as comely girls and good-looking men. The two scenic sets, especially the second, please the eye.

J. Arthur Hurley deserves praise for his setting of tempo and his maintenance of it; but for his simultaneous and thoughtful with a rather small orchestra. Mr. Lee Day, the stage manager, knows his business well. And Mr. Abner, as directing general, deserves at least passing mention.

ANTICIPATION

Dorothy Sebastian takes many bold chances in "The Big Gamble," at RKO, Boston.

Why men should wear working clothes to a dance is explained in article in the American Weekly in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser. Health experts claim that tight fitting dress collars, "bolled" shirts, and dress suits are not healthful.

True to Type 'GOD SAVE THE KING' ODD MUTINY TUNE

By Gilbert Seldes

IT IS AMUSING for us to read that the British sailors who were protesting against the cut in their wages sang "God Save the King," and then mutinied. We would have expected the sullen silence or the Red Flag or the Internationale; but the British tar is nothing if not traditional and he sang "God Save the King."

I suspect the seamen of no irony; the ancient taunt that the King needs to be saved from his ministers was probably not in their minds. English friends, momentarily upset by disaffection in the navy, the sacred faithful navy which has gone through revolts before, recover themselves and assure me that if Communism ever conquered England, steps into Vandy's place.

The King would be the first Communist. British kings (with a rare exception) do not lose their heads, because they have an exceptional capacity for changing their minds.

Two kings come to us in this connection.

The first is that Americans, even descendants of the English, are not particularly gifted with understanding of "the Mother Country."

Criticism in War

When the United States entered the war, Americans in England became viciously critical of the way the British treated their pacifists and objectors. It turned out to be not a bad way at all, as many of them came to be gentle of state in the next 15 years; it was a gentle way, and forbearing. The most violent press criticism of the war, for instance, was that of being a German spy; the government took it calmly. The English weekly, The Nation, went through the entire war in outspoken opposition. Abuses occurred; but on the whole, freedom of conscience was more respected in England than in any other country. To Americans, the whole thing was dangerous when it wasn't farcical.

The second point is that England has contributed perhaps more than any other to the present excitement of the world. For there is an excitement. Compared with the level of six months ago, the world is a different place. The Bank of England requires assistance from outside; the internal politics of the British Empire are upset by pressure; a solitary one only orders the vast empire to dismember itself, to withdraw from the center of the East; and the fleet is put out to sea. Even a hundred years from now, historians will have to give more than a footnote to these events.

That, of course, is the core of our excitement. For 10 years we have been living in footnote—to the great war. The smash in Wall St. was an echo of the gas. But now we are back in the type, in the main text of history. We suffer physically; our minds are cramped too hard by the sheer necessity of making a living and insuring our jobs. But life is far from dull.

Black Dance

The Lindy Hop has at last arrived. It is the Harlem successor to the Charleston and the Black Bottom, and for three years has been danced at special Lindy Hop contests, with prizes and fame for the winners. No dance I have ever seen gives so much freedom to the individual as this couple dance. It is the same as all you can say of it is that it is danced from the toes to the finger tips; that you may dance or squat; that you may hold your partner by the chin or dance five feet away from your partner, and that you must always keep moving.

The triumph of the Lindy Hoppers is in their capacity to create fantastic figures and keep them accurately in the rhythm of the music. The fancy steps of the lingo and the amusing twists of the rumba are adapted to their music, but the Hoppers take any place with a strong appointed beat and make arabesques of movement around it and the acrobatics they indulge in are worthy of specialists. In the least sensual dance I have ever seen, and the most exciting.

Why it was allowed to spring in Harlem for three years I can't guess. Threes of the champion dancing couples arrived in a show called "Singin' the Blues" and with the Four Fast Devils, acrobatic dancers by profession, proved that the Negro as a dancer is supremely interesting and as the subject of melodrama is only as interesting as the dramatist can make him.

Other Men's Ideas

From "The Epic of America" by James Truslow Adams (Little, Brown & Co.)
1860—"So the West crashed the gates of the Convention and nominated its own son, Abraham Lincoln, for President in the best interests and honor of Boston, New York, and all points East, which saw in the possible President only a giant, coast unadorned, hardy woodman with no qualifications whatever for high office."
1863—"If the North had lost, nothing would have happened except that it would have failed to keep the Union together by force. The South to the other hand was fighting for its very existence, and when it lost it was prostrate. Both sides gave up, but in the South the highest social class gave all, as that in the North did not."

"Most Americans had enjoyed the Spanish-American War immensely. There was no draft, and the casualties were slight. We overlooked the gross incompetence of the army chiefs and such trifles as that, owing to inferior rifles, it took 6500 Americans three hours to subdue 600 Spaniards at San Juan."

1893—"The story of our present decade must be briefly sketched. It may be described succinctly by saying that Harding had to liquidate the war; Coolidge had quietly to liquidate the scandals of the Harding regime; and Hoover is now wading the liquidation of the 'Coolidge property.'"

"You're a fine bunch of astronomers! Here I am, born under the sign of Taurus, and you can't tell me whether I'm going to marry a blonde or a brunette!"

Off the Press

By Idwal Jones

THE Constable's Lode as a drama of mining has few rivals in picturesqueness. Kimberley, the Rand and the Potol diggings, to name only three, are still going strong. The Constable's Lode is in suspended animation of its stock for a dime. But as a show it has no parallel in history.

Its tale has that completeness, that swift opening, climax and finally that gives it a charm and dramatic quality above any other in mining albums.

C. B. Glascock relates it with skill in "The Big Bonanza" (Bobbs-Merrill). The whole frenzy started off with "Old Pansake" Constable's stake out a claim spied first by somebody else. Then the rush, the finding of Virginia City, the journalistic exploits of Mark Twain—all buoyantly, but no more preposterous than the life about him.

So far, all was just Western routine, even to the pater-fung-out of the mines. The real fun began with the discovery of the fat bonanza by Senator John P. Jones, and the stepping in of the four Irish Gorgons: Mackay, Fair, Flood and O'Brien. Those bonanza king-stroked the Pacific Coast on its ear. Since the entire region was dependent on its mineral wealth it was in the clutch now of the first and the most ruthless of American monopolies, and got completely pauperized.

The 20 years of Constable, when $200,000,000 poured into the tills of the four comic ruffians were as full of jinks as the Walpurgis Night. The interludes were engrossing, too. The financing of Boulder's "pitch," the jockeying of Nevada into the Union, the aid of the government in paying off in specie after the Civil War—these are but a few.

It all makes a gaily and amusing chronicle, and Glascock, simply by brewing close to the facts gives us an edifying tale more hair-raising than any shocker.

1863—"The story of our present decade must be briefly sketched. It may be described succinctly by saying that Harding had to liquidate the war; Coolidge had quietly to liquidate the scandals of the Harding regime; and Hoover is now wading the liquidation of the 'Coolidge property.'"

The drama of the Constable's Lode, which has gone through revolts before, recover themselves and assure me that if Communism ever conquered England, steps into Vandy's place.

Revolts Abroad

By Aldous Huxley

IN A RECENT SPEECH Mussolini announced the possibility, for the coming winter, of serious and widespread revolutionary movements. It is a prophecy which one does not have to be a man of genius or a reigning dictator to make. The very facts are prophetic; we have only to list them.

For central Europe, monetary collapse and a series of national bankruptcies are grim possibilities. For the world at large, more unemployment, more poverty, more hunger are all but certain. There is too much wheat in the world; therefore millions must go without bread; such is the almost divinely paradoxical logic of the present economic circumstances.

Truly, individualism economy moves in a mysterious way its wonders to perform. If it is allowed to go on performing its wonders unchecked, it seems unquestionable that the revolutions prophesied by Mussolini will take place.

Why Not Move?

What always has astonished me is the fact not that revolutions should occasionally break out, but that they are not breaking out all the time. The all but infinitely long-suffering patience of the lower ranks in the social hierarchy has always struck me as the most significant and (though we all take it so cheerfully for granted) the most extraordinary fact in history.

For the great majority of human beings, the conditions of life always have been and still are, even in the most highly civilized countries, intolerably bad. And yet these intolerable conditions are in fact tolerated. Instead of rising and striking the throats of those who are (or at any rate seem to be) their oppressors, the oppressed have accepted their unpleasant lot with the resignation with which they accept bad weather—as a thing inevitable and not to be altered.

Why They Revolt

Only when hunger has driven them to desperation, or when injustice has become so monstrous that death itself is preferable to their present existence, or when, by their own incompetence or negligence in disaster, the rulers have allowed the social order to fall into chaos—only on these occasions will revolution finally break out. For the rest of the time—that is to say, for about 99 years out of every hundred—the masses resign themselves to their lot.

What is the explanation of this extraordinary, this super-human (or, at least, super-normal) patience? It is to be found, I suppose, partly in the mental inertia and physically debilitating effect upon the masses of the bad conditions which they accept; partly in the intrinsically poor hereditary makeup of the great majority of human beings.

Lacking the spirit and energy to rebel and the intelligence to carry rebellion to a successful conclusion is a new social order, the masses have accepted their social oppression. They could do nothing else. Revolution has broken out only when conditions, from being mere intolerable, became absolutely impossible. And it has been successful only in the cases where great leaders arose to inspire the revolutionaries, to give a direction to their movement, to impose a discipline and provide a strategy.

Bible Names

I love old Bible names—Methusalem. Brachias, I have heard that's marvellous. Oh, King of Babylon, glitters like a gem; To Zion I am partial.

I love old Bible names—Jehoshaphat. Two things thought a leaver. Abimelech, a priest with a high hat, Asher and Ebenezer.

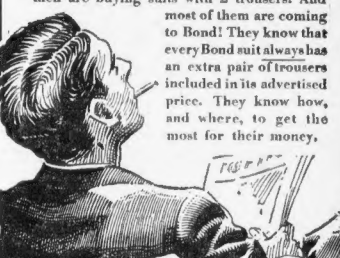

I love old Bible names—and yet, and yet. Through living I declare them. I cannot say I very much regret. That I don't have to wear them!

A "tip"—for men who wear out their clothes sitting down

—shiny pants never wrecked the life of a Bond suit

You needn't necessarily be a steepjack or a flag-pole sitter to be hard on your clothes. A mere office chair can hand out plenty of punishment! In fact, most suits retired from active duty are only suffering from a chronic case of high gloss on the seat. Coat and vest are still in good shape to go months longer. But the shiny pants can no longer be seen in polite company. • • • Every time this happens to you, you've only gotten 50 cents worth of wear for every dollar you spent. That's bad business! • • • Today, when everybody, everywhere, is out to make every dollar count to the utmost, more and more men are buying suits with 2 trousers. And most of them are coming to Bond! They know that every Bond suit always has an extra pair of trousers included in its advertised price. They know how, and where, to get the most for their money.

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

IT WAS QUITE LIKE OLD TIMES TO WALK AROUND the Hill in the breezy autumn air yesterday, meeting old friends and noticing a number of newcomers back in town. We dropped into the League for a moment to pick up a book and found Rachel Warner, secretary for this year, on the job. We had a nice chat with her and admired her frock, which was one of the new lightweight tweeds of a dull yellow hue.

MISS WARNER IS ALWAYS simply and distinctively costumed and is noticeable for her natural curly brown hair. We have always thought Rachel one of the most beautiful girls in Boston, although not of the common garden variety type. She is Junoesque, looks out of frank blue eyes at you, and has an adorable re-troousse nose, a quiet poise that is refreshing.

MISS RACHEL WARNER One soon wearies of the stereotyped mannerisms of the average debutante, with her ceaseless smoking and wise-cracking, or the repressed, staid dignity of the girl who has been out a few seasons and feels she should have some PURPOSE in life. Miss Warner looks as though she would be a heck of a good fellow.

Junior League President Returns

AS WE MEANDERED ALONG ARLINGTON ST. OUR eye was attracted to a chic couple chatting and laughing near the Ritz. Tweeds again, and we were pleased to see Dorothy Lawrence, new president of the Junior League, who has just returned from a summer in Scotland. Her smart, broad, and light suit was most becoming as she stopped for a moment to welcome Eleanor Gibson, also in tweed coat with cape of a buff color. We have said it before and are pleased to mention it in this column again and hope the BIG boys agree with us that the girls who have been out a few years are infinitely more attractive than when they stepped out of the schoolroom.

WANDERING OVER BEACON Hillway, we passed Mrs. Ronald Lyman, chic as usual, in a new suit with narrow bands of beaver around cuff and collar.

Mrs. Ronald Lyman

In her low heeled walking shoes and rakish brown hat, she appeared as young as a Junior League member and we think she is, really. Mrs. F. Murray Forbes (Eliza in Liverpool) was stepping out in a blue frock in huge white collar and white roll-up-own with her dog on Chestnut st. and blowing around the corner in a whirl of autumn leaves. Mrs. Andrew J. Windsor, Jr., might have been an autumn leaf herself in her ruddy tweed dress and small red hat trimmed with bands of white patent leather. She wore the most attractive white lace crocheted blouse with this suit.

AND IN THE DISTANCE WE glimpsed Polly Boske, whom we did not know had returned from abroad, with hat off and golden locks blowing in the breeze. She was slipping out of a swanky convertible cabriolet. Was it an engagement present, we wondered?

THIS IS LIFE

EVILS IN NEW TEACHING PLAN SHOWN UP IN DR. BAGLEY'S BOOK

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

A DANIEL HAS, in my humble estimation, come to justice. His name is William C. Bagley and his latest book—one of a long series covering some 30 years of work in education—is called "Education, Crime and Social Progress." Macmillan. How I found this book is rather amusing. A Boston school teacher, I happened to be in the school where Bagley was being discussed. Whereupon the Boston lady waxed indignant.

"Why?" quoth she, "this isn't anything new. It's only what Professor Rogers has been saying to us down in Boston for years!"

Which must have been a dread'd shock to the people at Columbia, since I have no truck with educationists and no standing with them. It should be said, however, that Professor Bagley seems to have been saying these things now for 20 years with more and more authority and emphasis. For he has the facts and figures and the intimate experience with public education to enable him to present as facts what I and a good many others have only suspected from personal contacts. He has given us the ammunition we need

Newer Education All Wrong

The public education of this country, Professor Bagley admits, is strongly in the hands of the "progressives," the people who would have us believe that the old method of education as a discipline is all wrong. They believe in the "freedom" theory of education; they "defy individual freedom, not only as an end in education, but also as the primary and most effective means to this end." They believe that "imposed tasks and prescribed programs of study not only violate the inherent right of the learner to make free choices, but are themselves either futile or negative as educational means."

The book is too full and detailed for me to give you any but a bare notion of it. I can only pick a passage here and there. The thesis is that the proof of the pudding is in the eating; that the steady increase in serious crime and divorce must mean that our increasingly loose and opportunistic educational theories are on the wrong track; and that we must deliberately stop "playing at the work of education" and work "through discipline to freedom."

All of which means, according to Dr. Bagley, scrapping a good deal of what passes as "the latest thing" in elementary education and returning to something not unlike the old "freedom" education, the theory that training can be transferred, instead of the modern idea that only specific functions can be trained. In other words, we can go back to the old concept that learning Latin has a usefulness greater than the mere knowledge of the language.

A Wallop for the West

The current educational notion that training cannot be transferred is, as Dr. Bagley shows, a deliberate distortion of evidence, since in 100 carefully studied cases transfer can be shown to have existed in 80 cases. In other words the old, formal curriculum had a powerful educational and social usefulness, a truth which has of late been denied.

No one who has studied the quality and caliber of the old-fashioned human product has ever doubted it for a moment. In the Middle West and the Coast, where these notions flourish and pervert the public school system, have been more interested in "democratic theory" than in the fruits of the theory. Dr. Bagley, who is no New Englander, hands the West a lovely wallop on this very point. Consistent in education can be proved statistically to show good results.

"Generally speaking, the schools of New England have been regarded as fairly conservative. They have often been contrasted unfavorably with what were held to be the more progressive schools of the Middle and Far West. It is rather the case of judging schools not on the basis of what they actually accomplish, but of how closely their programs fit our preconceived theories. What the New England schools have actually accomplished is susceptible of fairly trustworthy measurement, and constitutes, I think, one of the clearest refutations of universal education on record."

"New England has made this record in the face of a serious handicap, for the three States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut have had a larger burden of immigration to assimilate than any other parts of the country, and in recent decades this immigration has been made up largely of what reputable authorities regard as quite unimproving stock. At the same time, New England has sent many of the best elements of her native stock to the Western States. The population of New England is probably less than 20 per cent of old New England stock."

Massachusetts Leads the Rest

"And yet when we compare our 18 States on the basis of such definite measures as are furnished by the scores which their drafted soldiers made on the army intelligence tests, by the per capita earning power of the people, by the proportion of leaders produced, by the infrequency of serious crime, and by the relative production of criminals, we find the New England States well toward the top in each case. On a scale combining ten measures of present-day levels of mass intelligence, economic efficiency and mass morality, Massachusetts stands FIRST among the 18 States and the other 18 New England States follow."

Which is exactly what The American Mercury is in process of proving.

The proof of the pudding is in the eating. In spite of the tendency of our local educators to flirt with the improved, half-baked theories of education which emanate from those Cook-cuckoos, the departments of education of our great State universities of the Middle and Far West—in spite of that natural desire to climb on the bandwagon, our state as a whole does remain soberly conservative in educational matters. It is not merely an accident that all these other things are added onto it.

I shall probably give you another dose of Dr. Bagley shortly. Meanwhile, here are those of us who are very thankful for him!

MAJOR WEEPS AT SCHOOL DEDICATION

Breaks Down at the Exercises Opening Building Named in Honor of His Wife

With a capacity crowd filling the auditorium, and thousands more gathered outside, the new Mary E. Curley school, Center st., Jamaica Plain, was dedicated today.

Mrs. Curley, surrounded by members of her family, listened with tear-dimmed eyes to glowing words of praise uttered by Dr. Jeremiah P. Burke, superintendent of schools; Joseph J. Hurley, chairman of the school committee, and John F. McGowan, master of the school.

Mrs. Curley, who died last year, was eulogized as a "model of motherhood" and a "devoted Christian woman" by the various speakers.

Major Curley, when he came to speak, his voice was on the verge of cracking, and his eyes were blurred with tears.

"I appreciate most deeply the unusual event in naming a Boston school for a woman," the major said.

"In honoring Mary E. Curley, you pay honor to the most precious thing in the world—a mother, and she was indeed that. She was never known by her name, but by the name Mother Curley at home."

"She was not thorough at the early age of 37," the major continued, and she married and became a home-maker at 37.

"Any success I've achieved has been due to the inspiration, guidance, character and helpfulness of her who was more than a wife. She was a chum, a counselor, adviser and helper."

MAJOR IN TEARS
The exercises opened with an invocation pronounced by Rev. James P. Kelly, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, which the Curley family attended. "America" was sung by the school chorus, accompanied by the Boston Public School Symphony Band and then the program of songs was introduced.

An original poem, entitled "Mary E. Curley," was read by the son of the late Mrs. Curley, a young man, Joseph J. Curley, chairman of the school committee, assisted by James J. Hurley, a "mild, devoted Christian woman, who devoted her talents to assisting the home of her distinguished husband."

Dedication was pronounced by Rev. Samuel S. Holmes, pastor of St. Vincent's Episcopal Church, in which Mrs. Curley officiated at the unveiling of a bust of Mrs. Curley in the main entrance of the school. His brother, George, raised the flag in the front of the pole in the yard.

The committee, it was learned, has changed its attitude in regard to a proposed luxury tax for the purpose of raising the revenue for the improvement of the city.

Extension to cities and towns of the program of rural cooperation being put into effect in state schools by Gen. Bagley will be discussed with the Governor and Tuesday at the State House by the committee of five, representing the Mayor's Club of Massachusetts.

BIGELOW WILL NOT AID HUNT

The family of Stephen S. Bigelow has given no aid in efforts of Deputy Sheriff William A. McDermott to find his daughter, Mary, and Bigelow, it was revealed today by George McDermott, the girl's uncle.

The girl vanished from the Hotel Somerset, Commonwealth ave., last Thursday after her announcement that she and Bigelow, wealthy clubman, were married.

"We have been another check-up at all his clubs and at all his friends," said George McDermott today at the McDermott home, Sutherland rd., Brighton.

We have tried to get in touch with his family to get some help in finding out where he is, but have been entirely unsuccessful. We tried both his mother and his brother.

Mary's father believes if he can find Bigelow he can learn where his daughter is. Efforts to find her through her own friends have failed because they do not know where she is.

We are complete in the dark, but her absence is a very grave thing and her father is terribly worried."

Bigelow was in Boston Friday and Saturday, but told those who questioned him that he knew nothing of the girl's whereabouts. He refused to see her father at that time and since the weekend has been completely at the girl who claims to be his bride. Bigelow has denied the marriage.

George St. Jr., 20, and the family is beginning to fear for her safety in view of her continued failure to send any message home.

Although the college does not open until next week, registration is now in progress, and the number of returning students is increasing daily.

"She was offish, and turned her back on me, and would push me away at times. If I even went to kiss her, or pet her a little, she snarled," Scanlon said.

Scanlon, who has brought a suit for divorce which never has been heard, is a New York with three daughters, Maude, Ruth, and Marie, 22, a former partner of the famous dancer, Maurice, and a dancer.

Counsel for the defense announced that a deposition from the woman, which she is alleged to have obtained from such and such a party, will be read during the trial.

SCANLON TELLS OF MR. K.'N $100,000 SUIT

He Now Seeks for Balm From G. D. Pike, 67, After Many Gay Parties

Once before Thomas A. Scanlon, dancing teacher of 125 Peterborough st., collected a large sum of money from a man who was over-friendly with his wife, Scanlon told today in Judge O'Connell's court where he filed a $100,000 allegation suit against George D. Pike, 67, of 88 Gard st., former dancing pupil of Mrs. Maude E. Scanlon, is being tried before Judge O'Connell and a jury.

The amount of the suit was $100,000 and it came five years ago when a man identified in court only as "Mr. K." sued Scanlon, a wealthy and prominent Bostonian.

THE DANCING teacher admitted reality that there had been talk of alienation of his wife's affections by her negotiations with "Mr. K." but said the large settlement actually was in payment of a $100,000 loan lodged against "K." for "criminal conversation" with Mrs. Scanlon.

Scanlon testified, and his marital life was serene until Pike, who for some time had been taking dancing lessons from the Scanlons, proposed to her that she accompany him on a trip to Europe as his secretary. Scanlon said.

The invitation for the European trip was continued, was followed by a series of gay parties during the winter of 1916 at the Copplemans Hotel, Weber, Duck Inn and the Commonwealth Country Club, where his wife and Pike attended together.

Reunion at Old Home Affects Ernst

What Has Gone Before Ernst, who emulated when a group of war comrades who march home when peace is made. They are disheveled and reach their home city in a pouring rain. Ernst and Lieut. Ludwig Heyer are attacked by revolutionists and rescued by Wally Homeyer. Then the three walk homeward together. They see Bremer home first, then Wally and Ernst and Ernst goes on alone.

Now Go On With the Story
I listen to them rather absently. They have grown up since last I saw them. Or, perhaps I did not notice such things when we last met. The more I think of it, the more I realize that I must be over 17 already—How the time goes!

"Did you know Lieutenant Pleiter was dead?" asks my friend. "I knew his head. 'There was that'—In July—about the 20, I think."

NEWS OF FRIENDS
The water is standing in the lot. I stare with the lambs along the fringe of the tabelleth. So July, I think to myself—July—was last during the last five days of July. And I hardly remember the names of three of them, now there were so many more joined them as time went on.

"What was it?" I ask, feeling alone from the unaccustomed warmth of the room. "E, or perhaps not. But he wasn't a soldier, Ernst," protests my father, rather mystified. "He had intimation of the war."

"Oh, yes, of course," I say, setting myself upright in my chair again. "I forgot about those things. They recount all the rest that has happened since my last leave. The butcher at the corner was killed by a mob of hungry women. At one time the end of August, I had been as much as a whole pound of fish in a family. The day at Don Kout's has been taken away, to be worked up into soap like me. Potatoes are dearer again. Next week, perhaps, one may be able to buy some bones at the slaughter yard; my sister's second daughter was married last month—and to a captain."

WEDS' CAPTAIN
My sister stops short. "But you aren't listening at all, Ernst!" she says in astonishment.

"Oh, yes, yes," I reassure her, and pull myself together. "A captain, quite; she married a captain, you said."

"Yes, just think of it! Such luck! My sister runs on eagerly. "And her face simply covered with freckles. Look! What do you say to that now?"

"What should I say?" If a captain possesses a shapely bullet in the nut he is a good name as any other. "I am not. But I cannot not say my thoughts, they will keep wandering."

"I am not. But I cannot not say my thoughts, they will keep wandering."

When I was just a young girl at home, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I think young girls need it as much as married women do.

SURE! When a word fits, you know it! "Satisfy" just fits CHESTERFIELD. A smoker picks up a package, and he likes its neat appearance—no heavy inks or odors from ink. That satisfies him.

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied! Satisfy—they've got to satisfy! The right tobaccos, the CHESTERFIELD kind, cured and aged, blended and cross-blended, to a taste that's right. Everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is the best that money can buy and that science knows about. CHESTERFIELDS do a complete job of it. They Satisfy!

Mr. Shapiro's Dread
In India and in Iowa
Shall the Idle Hibernator?
Canada, Gold Mountain

By Arthur Brisbane
SHOOTING OF gangsters by gangsters continues, and would make an interesting added chapter for Kropotkin's "Mutual Aid as a Factor in Evolution." Mutual destruction thins the gangster ranks, but the empty places are soon filled.
Benjamin Meyerson of the Shapiro gang boasted that he was "the best dressed rascal in Brownsville." His next comment, not fashionable, will be supplied by an undertaker.

Joseph Grottal, another gangster, was killed near the spot on which Meyerson was placed. Both ex-convicts had been released or let out on bail after crimes that should have made it impossible for them to do any harm for 20 years at least.

The chief of their gang, Shapiro, recently killed, had speculatively. He was not afraid of bullets, and proved it. "But he would run, sobbing, if anybody pulled a knife on him."
Our imagination and anti-cedents rule us. Our ancestors have seen knives and their workers for so many hundreds of generations that we all dread them.
Bullets are new and we hardly believe in them.

India's natives, under British rule, must submit to modern methods of fighting the plague.
They do not like this and fight against it, insisting on their right to swim in the "Holy Ganges" river, although corpses of those dead of the plague may be floating upon it.

Iowa's State law compels testing cattle to make sure that they are not tubercular, a good idea, since children get consumption from the milk of tu-bercular cows. But it seems a bad idea to some Iowa farmers and it has been necessary to call out the militia to protect those that have been sent out to test the cattle.

Discovery of insulin, marvelous remedy for diabetes, becomes more important and marvelous in view of recent scientific suggestions.

A learned Briton says that insulin enables the unemployed to hibernate as the groundhog, bear and other animals do in winter, curing up, taking in heart enough oxygen to keep the heart going and eating nothing. Interesting solution of the unemployment and dole problem, perhaps.

But the thought of five or six million workers and their families curled up in the dark, all winter, is unpleasant.

England withdraws temporarily from the gold standard and Canada, her stalwart son, announces a Canadian dollar backed with gold, the name as the United States dollar. You under how soon English
children, Canada and others, may be taking care of their ancient mother?

Not very soon, probably, for power, intellect in Britannia, the most important of all wealth, and indestructible.

No doubt of Canada's ability to carry out her gold standard program.

Humboldt, quoted by Stuart Chase in his excellent new book, "Mexico, described Mexico as a mountain of gold with a beggar at its base."

That description is not accurate now, with Mexico building up industry and developing their resources.

Canada in potential of gold,
indeed, a mountain of gold, and those in control are able,
modern men, and, in proportion to their transactions, our best customers.

The stock market stands extremely well, the "gold news" from England. Important stocks yesterday were higher in price than before the news came.
This is due in part to the Stock Exchange having wisely put a ban on "short sales" and speculators selling stocks that they do not own, in effort to lower prices.

Since the Stock Exchange discouragement of speculators on short side, which is the side of pessimism, has done so much good, why not continue it?

Every man in Wall Street knows that with short selling comes numerous business immense conspiracies against real values.

People of moderate means,
who believe the bottom has been reached, and decide to buy stocks representing valuable properties, will, if they refrain from buying on margin.

In this day of uncertainty,
the ALL-CASH plan means safety.

One important question is
"WHAT EFFECT WILL
BRITAIN'S SILVER
ON THE VALUE?"
When an empire that reaches around the world says, "I can get along without gold," it

New York, Sept. 23.—Solution of the mystery of Benjamin Collings' murder will be sought in a new re-enactment of the crime by his young widow, who

MYSTERY DEEPENS
Coming on the heels of Dist.
Atty. Alexander Blue's announce-

Mrs. Collings' story, the absolute back into an old channel of con-

Dist. Atty. Blue was silent regard-his chief investigator, Detective Philip D. Martin, will for the first time be a witness.

He said only that an extensive search for a madman, whose identity was known, was being made.
The man, he said, was recently detained from a New York institution and is missing from his usual quarters.

Other developments in the murder of the Bradford (Ct.) engineer were these:

1—Three known youths were also caught in the belief that they had been the man's accomplices in piracy, murder and kidnapping.
